Avon Cleaners Handles Same-Day Orders With Equal Care

Is Same-Day Dry Cleaning Reliable for Delicate Fabrics?

2026-11-10

DALLAS, Texas, November 10, 2026 - With fall football weekends, SMU campus events, and holiday invitations filling calendars, Avon Cleaners is explaining how they handle silk, cashmere, and other delicate fabrics as a same-day dry cleaner serving Highland Park. The family-owned cleaner says most everyday delicates qualify, provided the cleaning steps stay identical to a standard order.

Why Speed Alone Does Not Harm Delicate Fibers

Heat, moisture, and solvent choice decide whether a delicate fiber comes through cleaning intact, and turnaround time plays no part in that equation. For that reason, the company runs rush orders through the same sequence used on its regular two-day schedule. The practical test is simple: what, if anything, changes when an order moves faster?

At this Hillcrest Avenue same-day dry cleaner, every same-day garment receives four steps:

Inspection and sorting, grouping each piece by its fiber, color, and build

Cleaning in SYSTEM K4, a 100% biodegradable, dermatologically tested solvent

Pressing and hand finishing (where suitable)

A closing quality review, completed before any piece is bagged

A same-day silk blouse gets the same inspection, cleaning, and hand finishing as one on their two-day schedule. The clock changes where an order sits in the queue. It never changes the steps.

What Federal Care Labels Tell a Cleaner

Before cleaning begins, the garment's care label sets the limits. Federal Trade Commission rules require apparel makers to back each printed care direction and warning with dependable proof.

A rush order is only as safe as the inspection that comes before it. Reading the label and checking the trim protects a delicate piece far more than slowing the order down.

Which Items Stay Off the Same-Day Schedule?

Specialty items including the following categories follow longer timelines:

Suede and leather, which are sent to an outside specialty cleaner

Wedding gowns, handled as a separate cleaning and preservation service

Route orders, which return on the customer's scheduled delivery day

Customers who miss the morning cutoff at Avon Cleaners can request next-day service or choose the standard two-day turnaround.

How the Kiosk Supports Early Drop-Offs

The 24-hour dry cleaning kiosk that Highland Park and SMU customers use sits at 6301 Hillcrest Avenue and accepts drop-offs and pickups at any hour after account setup. An SMU professor with an early class, or a family visiting for a game day weekend, can leave garments at the kiosk the evening before. Customers receive a text message when the order is ready, including the total.

For orders that are not urgent, pickup and delivery service at a flat charge of $1.50 per trip is available. Their routes cover Dallas, the Park Cities, Preston Hollow, Far North Dallas, Plano, Frisco, Addison, Las Colinas, Farmers Branch, Southlake, Grapevine, and Trophy Club. Pickup and delivery can be scheduled through the company's iOS app or its web portal.

Plan for Fall Event Season

The same-day dry cleaning cutoff is 9 AM, so a garment dropped off at the Hillcrest Avenue kiosk overnight can be ready the next day. Residents with questions about a specific silk, cashmere, or beaded piece can call Avon Cleaners before their next event.

About Avon Cleaners

Avon Cleaners was founded in Dallas in 1968 by Karoly Godo, a Hungarian immigrant who brought a tradition of fine European craftsmanship to his new city. Now led by his granddaughter, the family business operates stores on Hillcrest Avenue and Lovers Lane. Services include dry cleaning, laundered shirts, household textile care, wedding gown preservation, and Wash Dry Fold laundry service in Highland Park.
