Avon Cleaners Meets The Demand for Dry Cleaning Pickup in Dallas

What Does Dry Cleaning Pickup Near Park Cities Actually Include?

2026-11-04

DALLAS, Texas, November 4, 2026 — Avon Cleaners, a family-owned dry cleaner serving the Park Cities since 1968, is outlining what local dry cleaning pickup in Dallas, TX, actually includes. More households are looking for alternatives to counter drop-off. Back-to-school schedules are tightening across Highland Park and University Park, and questions about scheduling and delivery windows have increased.

How the Pickup Process Works

Under the process, a driver collects tagged garments from a home or office during a scheduled window. Orders then move to one of the company's two Park Cities locations, at Lovers Lane and Hillcrest Avenue. Each order goes through inspection. Eligible garments undergo cleaning with the company's System K4 biodegradable solvents, while laundered shirts, specialty items, and Wash, Fold, Dry garments follow appropriate treatment processes. After hand-finishing, dry-cleaned garments are returned on the date the customer selects from available times on the route days for their location. The main difference from counter drop-off is who does the driving. Pickup removes the two trips a drop-off order typically requires: one to bring items in, one to collect them.

Every order, picked up or dropped off, goes through the same inspection, cleaning, and hand-finishing. The company says holding both options to one standard matters most for higher-value pieces. Tailored suits and designer garments depend on consistent handling and solvent choice. Fit, color, and fabric integrity can suffer without it over repeated cleanings.

Time Pressure Behind the Demand

According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics' 2024 American Time Use Survey, Table A-1, people age 15 and over in the U.S. civilian population spend an average of about 10 minutes per day on laundry. This adds up to roughly 62 hours per year. This is an individual average, not a household total, and it measures primary laundry activity only. The figure does not include the added time a dry cleaning trip requires: driving, parking, and waiting at a counter. Dual-income households increasingly search for options for doorstep dry cleaning pickup in Dallas, TX, for this reason, according to the company. Interest tends to rise during periods like the current back-to-school stretch, when family calendars fill quickly.

"We get a lot of calls about logistics," said Callie Godo, third-generation owner of Avon Cleaners. "People want to know exactly how pickup works before they commit to it. We wanted to lay out the process clearly, from what a driver picks up to how items come back. Park Cities families researching options for dry cleaning pickup should know what to expect. That goes whether they've used us for years or are considering us for the first time."

Pickup and Delivery Coverage in Dallas and Surrounding Areas

Avon Cleaners offers pickup and delivery on eligible routes in Highland Park, University Park, Dallas, Frisco, Plano, and other surrounding areas for a flat $1.50 per trip, the same for one item or ten. Enter your ZIP code to check availability for your address. Route days and pickup arrangements are established when you sign up.

Pickup orders can include suits, dresses, outerwear, and silk garments, along with Wash Dry Fold laundry and household textiles such as bedding and table linens. Cleaning charges are separate from the trip fee. Return dates depend on route availability and each item’s processing needs. Specialty items, including leather and suede, require additional time.

Scheduling Pickup

Park Cities residents who need affordable dry cleaning pickup in Dallas, TX, can create an account through the Avon Cleaners app or website. From there, they select a pickup window and tag garments ahead of the driver's arrival. Account setup takes only a few steps online. Customers can also call directly to schedule a pickup and ask about route days and expected turnaround times for different types of garments.
